

ANTES DE FINALIZAR ENERO SE APLICARA EL PLAN DE AYUDA A LA ZONA ATLANTICA

En ediciones precedentes hemos ofrecido a los lectores algunas noticias relativas al plan del Banco Nacional de Costa Rica para prestar ayuda económica a la zona Atlántica.

Ayer nos enteramos de que, antes de finalizar el presente mes, comenzará a ponerse en práctica ese plan que, hace algunas semanas, fué esbozado por medio de "La Tribuna" por el gerente de la institución bancaria del Estado, don Julio Peña.

En estos momentos, según se nos dijo, se llevan a cabo estudios sobre la producción de cacao de la zona, para proceder a financiarla, no solamente adelan-tándole dinero a los productores sobre el grano que entreguen a la bodega del Banco en Limón, sino para que puedan emprender nuevos cultivos.

Una vez que esos estudios están terminados, la directiva del Banco determinará la suma que se le asignará a la junta rural de crédito que funcionará en Limón, para que pueda operar.

Supimos, además, que el Banco le asignará a la junta otra suma para comenzar la financiación de la ganadería en la zona Atlántica pues el Banco está sumamente empeñado en prestarle todo su apoyo a la industria ganadera de esa región.

MANTIENE LA MUNICIPALIDAD EL IMPUESTO DE VEINTICINCO CENTIMOS POR METRO LINEAL DE ACERAS EN MAL ESTADO

En la cesión Municipal del mes último, algunos propietarios protestaron por el cobro que ha venido haciendo la Municipalidad de veinticinco céntimos por metro lineal de aceras en mal estado. Alegaron los interesados en tre otras cosas que es injusto el cobro del total del frente de la propiedad cuando los daños de la acera son pedazos.

Consideró la Corporación que estaba dentro de la justicia y que la intención que la había movido al crear el impuesto era el de obligar a los propietarios a reparar las aceras, que a medida que estos lo hagan se les irá suprimiendo el impuesto, para lo cual los interesados deberán dirigirse al Municipio oportunamente.

En un barco norteamericano que arribará a puerto Limón en el curso de la próxima semana, llegará a Costa Rica el expresidente de la república de Venezuela general Isaias Medina Angarita. Así se nos informó esta mañana en fuentes bien enteradas.

SE ORDENA LA EJECUCION DE UNA PLACA DE BRONCE PARA EL BARRIO ROOSEVELT

El señor Gobernador de la Provincia ha ordenado a los Talleres de Obras Públicas la confección de una placa de bronce para colocar en la entrada del antiguo sector de la ciudad que se llamó Jamaica Town y que la actual Corporación Municipal designó con el nombre de Barrio Roosevelt, en memoria del presidente de los Estados Unidos Franklin D Roosevelt.

Esta placa será colocada a la entrada de la calle 5 sobre un pedestal sencillo y será inaugurada antes de que termine el actual período municipal, con una ceremonia oficial cuyos detalles aun no conocemos.

ALGUNOS DATOS INTERESANTES SOBRE LA IMPORTANTE CONTROVERSIA ENTRE GUATEMALA Y LA GRAN BRETAÑA EN REFERENCIA AL LITIGIO DE BELICE

Para su publicación hemos recibido del señor Cónsul de la República de Guatemala los importantes boletines que insertamos en referencia al litigio por el territorio de Belice entre la Gran Bretaña y la República de Guatemala. Con mucho placer damos a la publicidad las referidas notas que nos envía el estimable caballero don Víctor Cottone Cónsul de la República de Guatemala en esta ciudad:

Señor don Enrique Arrazola Director de LA VOZ ATLANTICA Limón, C. R. Distinguido señor Arrazola: Adjunto me permito remitirle los últimos Boletines emitidos por el Ministerio de Relaciones Exteriores de la República de Guatemala concernientes al litigio territorial existente con Gran Bretaña por el territorio guatemalteco de Belice, los cuales fueron enviados a este Consulado para su publicidad. Siendo este litigio de clásico interés continental, muy antaño me ruego a usted se sirva darles publicidad en su acreditado semanario, favor por el cual doy a Ud. las gracias en nombre del Gobierno Constitucional que represento. Sin otro particular por el momento, me es grato reiterarme de usted con muestras de mi más distinguida consideración y alto aprecio, su atento y seguro servidor

En marzo del año en curso, el Gobierno inglés protestó ante el de Guatemala por la inclusión en la Constitución de la República, del artículo 1º transitorio, que declara a Belice territorio guatemalteco. El Gobierno de la República rechazó esa protesta por encontrarse la infundada y ofensiva a los derechos de Guatemala y basó su rechazo en la caducidad del tratado de 30 de abril de 1859, modificado por el artículo 1º de la Constitución de 1935. NUEVA FRUTA TROPICAL CULTIVADA EN HONDURAS, TIENE POSIBILIDADES COMERCIALES

COCOANUT GROVE, Florida. —Hace cincuenta años el doctor David Fairchild, que en aquel entonces era miembro del Departamento de Agricultura de los Estados Unidos, y que ahora es dueño de los Jardines Tropicales Fairchild aquí, probó un mango tán en los famosos jardines de Buitenzorg, en Java. Declaró que era la fruta más deliciosa de todas.

El doctor Fairchild fué un explorador agrícola especial para el Departamento de Agricultura. A su regreso a los Estados Unidos decidió que haría todo esfuerzo para establecer huertos de mangostán en la América tropical.

Ahora, medio siglo más tarde, el éxito ha coronado sus esfuerzos. Recientemente el doctor Fairchild fué el anfitrión en la primera "fiesta del mangostán" que jamás se haya celebrado en los Estados Unidos. Los mangostanes que el doctor Fairchild les sirvió a sus invitados sorprendidos y en cantados le fueron enviados por avión desde un huerto en el Valle de Lancetilla, en Honduras.

El Mangostán es como del tamaño de una naranja mandarina. En las Indias Orientales es una fruta muy conocida. Su gruesa cáscara de color rojo morado envuelve a una fruta jugosa de con textura tan rosada y delicada que parece deshacerse en la boca. El sabor sugiere tanto al durazno como la piña.

El árbol del mangostán, que crece a una altura de 25 a 30 pies, tiene un follaje denso y verde que se semeja algo al árbol del caucho. Crece lentamente, y no llega a dar fruto en las Indias Orientales hasta que tiene ocho o nueve años. En Ceylán los árboles florecen dos veces por año o sea en agosto y en enero. El doctor Wilson Popenoe, que anteriormente estuvo asociado con la Office of Plant Introduction del Departamento de Agricultura y que actualmente es una de las autoridades de la United Fruit Company en Honduras, empezó a coleccionar semillas para un huerto de mangostanes en 1926. Encontró un solo árbol a orillas del Lago Izabal en Guatemala, y de él tomó todas las semillas. (Pasa a la pág. 2)

ENCONTRADA EL ACTA MATRIMONIAL DE HITLER

Los Agentes secretos de las naciones aliadas después de grandes esfuerzos pudieron localizar en una aldea de Alemania y escondida en una valija el acta matrimonial de Hitler por medio de la cual legalizó sus relaciones amorosas clandestinas con Eva Braun. Las manchas de tinta en las firmas señaladas por las fechas, primero en la de Hitler y luego en la de la Braun demuestran a las claras que el acta fué levantado con toda precipitación.

favorecida por incumplimiento, de parte del Gobierno inglés, de la cláusula compensatoria de dicho pacto.

En octubre último, la Cancillería dispuso reconocer la calidad de guatemalteco natural a toda persona nacida en el territorio de Belice, que así lo solicitare, de acuerdo con las disposiciones de la Constitución.

Ahora, el Gobierno británico confirma la protesta de marzo y formula una nueva por la disposición anterior.

El Gobierno de Guatemala rechaza categóricamente ambas protestas, que carecen de fundamento, por el hecho de que la Gran Bretaña carece de título para retener el territorio.

He aquí el texto de las notas cruzadas al respecto:

LEGACION BRITANICA
Nº 85

Guatemala, 21 de diciembre, 1945
Excelencia:

En una nota de 24 de setiembre de 1945, el predecesor de Vuestra Excelencia tuvo la bondad de informarme del deseo del Gobierno de Guatemala de renovar las negociaciones con el Gobierno de Su Majestad para el arreglo de la disputa relativa a Belice. El Gobierno de Su Majestad en el Reino Unido ha tenido muchas preocupaciones que han ocupado su atención en los últimos meses, pero tengo instrucciones para informar a Vuestra Excelencia que espera enviar una respuesta aceptable muy pronto.

2. Entre tanto, he sido instruido para informar a Vuestra Excelencia que el Gobierno de Su Majestad se enteró, con sorpresa considerable, del boletín expedido por el Ministerio de Relaciones Exteriores de Guatemala, y publicado en la prensa guatemalteca del 10 de octubre, relativo a la nacionalidad de las personas nacidas en Belice.

3. Este anuncio se basa en el artículo primero de las disposiciones transitorias de la Constitución de Guatemala, contra el cual, como Vuestra Excelencia sabe, el Gobierno de Su Majestad ha formulado ya una protesta formal. Tengo ahora instrucciones de confirmar esta protesta, y de presentar una nueva protesta formal contra el anuncio mencionado arriba, que implica la concesión de la nacionalidad guatemalteca a súbditos británicos en Belice. El Gobierno de Su Majestad, desde luego, no puede reconocer que este anuncio pueda en manera alguna, afectar el estatuto existente de cualquier persona a quien concierne.

MINISTERIO DE RELACIONES EXTERIORES - REPUBLICA DE GUATEMALA
Nº 15632
186 (42-0)

Guatemala, 27 de diciembre 1945
Señor Encargado:

Tengo el honor de acusar recibo de la atenta nota de Vuestra Señoría, Nº 85, de fecha 21 de diciembre en curso.

Me he enterado con satisfacción de que Vuestra Señoría ha recibido instrucciones para informarme que el Gobierno de Su Majestad espera enviar dentro de muy breve tiempo, una respuesta adecuada a la nota de este Ministerio de 24 de setiembre de 1945, relacionada con la renovación de la discusión diplomática respecto a la controversia angloguatemalteca por la reivindicación del territorio de Belice.

En el punto tercero de su nota, Vuestra Señoría me manifiesta tener instrucciones para confirmar la protesta formulada por el Gobierno de Su Majestad con motivo de haberse incluido en la Constitución de la República el Artículo primero de las disposiciones transitorias, que declara a Belice como parte integrante del territorio nacional; y formula una nueva protesta por las disposiciones de este Gobierno de, reconocimiento como guatemaltecos naturales a las personas nacidas en el territorio de Belice.

Debo manifestar a Vuestra Señoría que mi Gobierno rechazó de manera terminante la protesta del Gobierno de Su Majestad por considerarla infundada y ofensiva a los derechos de la República. Mi Gobierno basó este rechazo en el hecho de que, caducada la Convención del 30 de abril de 1859, la Gran Bretaña carece en absoluta de título alguno para retener ese territorio. En nota Nº 5472, de fecha 24 de abril de 1940, esta Cancillería demostró, con documentación irrefutable, exclusivamente británica, que dicha Convención de 1859 no fué de límites sino de cesión territorial, y que el Artículo séptimo no contenía obligaciones mutuas en beneficio de ambos contratantes, sino era la cláusula compensatoria que imponía a Inglaterra obligaciones unilaterales en beneficio exclusivo de Guatemala. Ya en la nota Nº 4903, fechada el 13 de abril del mismo año 1940, este Ministerio había explicado claramente a esa honorable Legación que al repudiar la Gran Bretaña el cumplimiento de la cláusula compensatoria, el artículo séptimo de la Convención de 1859, y al negarse a considerar las indemnizaciones consiguientes a dicha repudiación, ha dado a Guatemala opción a rechazar el artículo primero del pacto, es decir, la cesión territorial que, en 1859, se vió en el caso de convenir. Ninguna de estas dos notas ha merecido, hasta ahora, respuesta de parte del Gobierno de Su Majestad.

Inexistente la Convención de 1859, las cosas han vuelto lógicamente a su estado anterior a la condición de dicho Convenio y, por consiguiente, la Gran Bretaña carece por completo de título de soberanía sobre el territorio de Belice.

Estando así las cosas, y poseyendo Guatemala título legítimo de soberanía sobre dicho territorio, aún cuando por razones de hecho no tenga actualmente posesión, mi Gobierno considera ilegal la posesión de facto que el Gobierno inglés mantiene sobre ese territorio, y en consecuencia, se considera legalmente autorizado para reconocer la calidad de guatemaltecos a las personas nacidas dentro del territorio que la Constitución de la República ha declarado como nacional.

Debo hacer notar a Vuestra Señoría que el Gobierno de Guatemala no pretende obligar a nadie a adoptar la nacionalidad guatemalteca, sino únicamente da opción para hacerla efectiva, a quienes por nacimiento tienen derecho a ella.

En consecuencia de lo expresado, me veo precisado a rechazar de manera categórica y terminante, en nombre del Gobierno de la República, la nueva protesta formulada por Vuestra Señoría, y a ratificar en todos sus términos y alcances el rechazo formal de la protesta anterior del Gobierno de Su Majestad.

Ruego a Vuestra Señoría se sirva tomar nota y comunicarlo así al Gobierno de Su Majestad, que el Gobierno de Guatemala está ansioso de que esta controversia se ventile lo más pronto posible, dentro de los términos de la mayor cordialidad y en forma que haga honor a las relaciones de amistad que tradicionalmente han unido a Guatemala y a la Gran

LA REAL OBRA HUMANITARIA

En la niñez surgen y crecen ahora todos los males del desequilibrio orgánico y moral que invadirán mañana, en inacabable caravana de martirio, las prisiones y los asilos, y repondrán las bajas en las filas del vicio y en los antros de la corrupción.

Nuestros afanes de regeneración, nuestros propósitos de beneficencia fallan porque se aplican demaciado tarde. La pobreza fisiológica, la locura, el crimen, todas las dolorosas manifestaciones de nuestra imperfección de ser humano, se combaten en el niño. Se realizaría así obra racional y verdaderamente humanitaria.

Todos estos fracasos que llenan los asilos y las cárceles, que Bretona, con objeto de que en un breve plazo, pueda llegarse a la solución justa y equitativa del litigio, para que nuestras relaciones no encuentren óbice alguno en su desarrollo y estrechamiento.

Aprovecho la oportunidad para renovar a Vuestra Señoría el testimonio de mi muy distinguida consideración,

LA SERENATA DEL LUNES EN HONOR DEL SR. VICEPRESIDENTE DEL CONGRESO

Un numeroso grupo de amigos sin distinción de colores políticos, ofreció en la noche del lunes una magnífica serenata al Licenciado don Francisco Fonseca Chamier, Vice Presidente del Congreso y Diputado por la Provincia de Limón y a su distinguida familia.

Una magnífica orquesta de veinte profesores ejecutó la serenata en la Aduana, donde pasa unos días de descanso el Licenciado Fonseca.

Ofreció la fiesta el caballero don Carlos Mora Aguilar en un corto y elocuente discurso. Habló luego a nombre de los otros cantones de la provincia, que quisieron sumarse al homenaje don Ricardo Villafranca. Contestó el licenciado Fonseca agradeciendo la manifestación que se le hacía por su labor en la Cámara y manifestó que estaba siempre anuente a cualquier sugestión que viniera de cualquier factor de la provincia en beneficio de la zona atlántica. Luego ofreció el Licenciado Fonseca a los concurrentes licores y refrescos. Terminó el homenaje pasadas las once de la noche.

La voz Atlántica aprovecha esta oportunidad para felicitar al señor Diputado por la provincia por su magnífica y efectiva labor en beneficio del bienestar y el adelanto de la zona atlántica. Diputados como el licenciado Fonseca son los que necesitamos en estos momentos de crisis económica.

Cuando el doctor Fairchild y señora de Fairchild se encontraban en la Expedición Allison en las Indias Neerlandesas en 1926 encontraron unas frutitas soberbias en la isla de Peñang, Establecimientos del Estrecho de Malaca, y enviaron una cantidad de semillas al Dr Popenoe desde allí.

De estas semillas ha crecido una huerta de 700 árboles, situada en el Valle de Lancetilla, y que llegaron a rendir por primera vez en el año pasado produciendo 30 toneladas de mangostanes. Desde esta huerta se envían los mangostanes que el doctor Fairchild presentó a sus invitados en su fiesta.

Tu me perdonarás porque me acas...

 ¡He vivido perdido en un abismo de angustias y de males!
 Tu sabrás comprenderme bien amada; y me querrás aún más y más, hasta la muerte aunque el Cielo se oponga...
 Eternamente...
 Y yo, he de amarte, mujer, porque eres buena; porque eres santa y mereces que te queira.
 Pongo a tus pies mi vida entera y abro mi corazón para que sepas todas mis penas...
 Mis angustias y males...
 Para que vengas a calmar este dolor que me ahoga...
 Tu me habrás de perdonar porque me amas y yo te he de querer porque eres buena; porque has compartido mi profunda pena y te he arastrado conmigo hasta el abismo que se abre en mi alma...
 Tu me perdonarás, porque me amas...

DOLORES en las COYUNTURAS

Los dolores en las coyunturas y en la cintura le indican que sus riñones no funcionan normalmente. Estos órganos están inactivos y permiten que las impurezas y venenos, al no ser eliminados de la sangre, se alojen en los músculos y coyunturas.

No solamente eliminar las impurezas y venenos, sino que también entonan y fortalecen los riñones. Dentro de las 24 horas de haber tomado la primera dosis de Pildoras DeWitt, la orina se tornará azulada. Esto demuestra que el excelente antiséptico que contiene las Pildoras DeWitt ejerce su acción en la propia raíz del mal, en los riñones. Cuando sus riñones hayan recuperado su actividad normal, cesará el dolor en las coyunturas, desaparecerán las migrañas y dolores de cabeza, como si el curso de una enfermedad hubiese sido eliminada, usted podrá sentirse con algo más que alivio temporario.

GERMANS FOOLED AT TIME OF INVASION

The Germans guessed the place, strength and approximate time of the Allied invasion of Normandy, but were fooled in their expectation that a second, stronger thrust would come farther north, a supreme headquarters intelligence officer disclosed Thursday after questioning Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl of the Nazi high command.

This officer said questioning of Jodl and Field Marshals Wilhelm Keitel and Albert Kesselring also disclosed that:

Orders for German invasion of Britain were issued July 2, 1940, but were cancelled Oct. 6, three months later, because of the hazards and lack of training.

AFRICA SURPRISE

Hitler alone did not make the decision to invade Russia, but the German high command shared in that decision, and Jodl claimed the Russians had been strengthening their forces facing Germany.

The Allied invasion of North Africa scored a complete surprise.

The Germans were amazed by the failure of their attempt to smash the Americans' corridor out of Normandy, at Avranches, last August.

Jodl was quoted as saying that although the German high command guessed the general area and approximate strength of the D-day invasion, the Germans had expected it several weeks earlier.

The Nazis were certain, Jodl said, that the Allies would make a second, even stronger assault farther north in the Pas de Calais area, and for this reason hesitated to shift 14 divisions of the German 15th army concentrated there to Normandy to reinforce the German seventh army.

Determined to hold the Pas de Calais area and its V-weapon sites, the Germans did not transfer troops from there until they had determined that the Allied divisions which they believed were being held for a landing at Pas de Calais were fighting in Normandy.

REALIZED TOO LATE

Ten days after the Normandy landings, the Germans realized they couldn't shove the Allies back into sea without more mobile reserves, and it was then that they rushed the Second SS corps consisting of the Ninth and Tenth SS Panzer divisions, to the west despite the sore need for them still on the eastern front.

All members of the German high command had thought the invasion could be repulsed, but Jodl personally was not satisfied with the number of reserve German divisions in France.

FEARED AIR POWER

Jodl said the British invasion orders finally were cancelled because the weather and lack of training and equipment made it too hazardous. The German army was not trained in amphibious operations, Jodl insisted he personally opposed an invasion because it would have meant landing 10 divisions in 10 days, and because the Germans did not have the air power to whip both the British Air Force and Royal Navy.

Jodl also said it had been hoped that Britain would not continue fighting after France fell.

As for Russia, Jodl said nobody had considered an attack on the Soviet as either desirable or probable, but that late in 1940 and early in 1941 he reported to Hitler that the Russians were building up their forces against Germany. Hitler, Jodl continued, felt that if he did not attack, he soon would be faced with Russia's entry into "weaker states" of Europe.

Thus Hitler and the high command agreed to attack Russia, Jodl said. He declared the invading Germans fully prepared for war. Jodl said the North African invasion gave the Nazi high command its first complete surprise, that the Germans had no idea a blow was contemplated until Allied convoys were seen moving through Gibraltar. Even then the Germans didn't know where landings would come.

The German command, he continued, disapproved of Hitler's friendship with Mussolini, and didn't want Italy to join in the war. Jodl, Kesselring and Keitel all said Italy was considered a liability rather than an asset, the intelligence officer reported.

Jodl said the German failure to break through at Avranches—the corridor through which American armor raced to Brittany and then fanned out to form the Falaise trap and sweep over France—put the Germans in such a position that when the American breakthrough came, the Nazis could not form their lines again. He also declared the Germans were astonished at the audacity city of American tactics.

If, Jodl said, the Germans had given up the Avranches attack and fought a rear-guard action on the Seine, the Allies never would have broken through the Siegfried line because the Germans would have had time to man it properly.

Questioned about the Ardennes offensive Jodl said the Germans realized the war was lost when that blow failed last December, but that Germany continued to fight on in hopes of a political miracle and a stand behind the Rhine. Seizure of the Remagen bridge over the Rhine upset that schedule he added.

The German general said Hitler and the high command alike felt that some offensive had to be undertaken. A counterattack in the east was first considered, but discarded because the Russians had more than 400 divisions.

So the Germans chose the weak spot in the center in the Ardennes area. This attack was originally scheduled to open between Nov. 20 and Nov. 22, Jodl declared, but had to be delayed until Dec. 16 because of Allied air attacks on highways and railroads.

Jodl declared 900 trains were needed to concentrate Nazi forces for the attack, and that the entire Sixth Panzer army was moved over the Rhine in the greatest secrecy.

IN THE BASKET OF THE WEEK

Let us start anew this morning with a higher, fairer creed
 Let us cease to stand complaining of life's failures
 Let us cease repining while our duty call is clear
 Let us waste no time murmuring, then our hearts shall know no fear.

THE YEAR 1946

FROM OUR DESK BY THE EDITOR

Today, we enter upon the twelfth day of the month of January 1946; not only with the thought of being a New Year, but with the joy that outside of the civil disturbances in some parts of the world, the greatest number of our human brethren are free from burden — cruelties — slavery and torture.

This period brings us to the second January since the termination of the European war and first since the capitulation of Japan.

It is a boom of relief to possess the realization that this New Year finds a large quantity of human creatures standing for the unification and solidarity of mankind; living in that realization that before our Creator each man's soul is of boundless value.

1946 finds the smaller European nations — China and those of the Pacific slands basking in the sunshine of freedom and human liberties. The yokes of Nazi Germany and the fanatic Japanese Imperial Government have been taken off. These nations are freed once more to work out their destinies; aided by the United Nations of the occupied countries. Those persons who have survived the most cruelly of all human treatment under a systematic murder and were deliberately marked down for brutal extermination, can in this year breathe in an atmosphere of civilization, free to observe and appreciate the beauties of nature and with light hearts they can praise the Giver.

On our continent it is quite evident that we will be forced for some time to bear much of the burden produced as an aftermath of the eight year war of the Far East the live years of Europe and the nearly four years of the Pacific conflict.

It seems impossible for us to expect a sudden rich state of living, but there is almost every assurance that with national unity the hungry wolves will have no opportunity to prey upon us.

It is our fond hope that throughout the year we shall grow nearer and nearer to one another; remembering at all times that the weakest at times, can give some help to the strongest and this latter should not always use its force to crush the humble and meek.

THE 60TH ANNIVERSARY OF COSTA RICA'S RED CROSS SOCIETY

The marches of the years brought the 60th anniversary of the Costa Rica's Red Cross Society and in high tribute to the commemorative event, the President of the Republic, Lic. Don Teodoro Picado authorized the emission of a postage stamp: — one that is said to carry a Red Cross and the effigies of two prominent English women; — two nurses who demonstrated themselves as great heroines in facing danger and death to take care of wounded soldiers in war: — namely, Florence Nightengale and Edith Cavell.

History is emblazoned with the marvellous deeds accomplished by these two English women of immortal memory.

The long peace which had reigned in Europe since the Wellington victory of Waterloo in 1815 was at length broken in the Crimean War of 1854. Russia under pretense of saving the Christian provinces on the Danube from Turkish misrule, made war on Turkey, to whom they belonged, with the hope that she might herself be able to seize Constantinople and make herself mistress of the Black Sea. Britain and France formed themselves in to an alliance to prevent this and came to the assistance of Turkey. They landed an army into the Crimea, a peninsula in the south of Russia, won the great battles of the Alma (September 1854), Balaklava (October 1854) and Inkermann (November 1854) and besieged the Russians in their strong fortress of Sebastopol.

During this struggle Florence Nightengale was the first English woman to have voluntarily organized a group of her country women as nurses to care for wounded British soldiers who had suffered horribly during the siege, but these soldiers true to the characteristic noble courage of the British soldiers, it is recorded that they had borne their hardships equally as their gallantry on the battle fields.

The then Czar Nicholas of Russia had great human generals, but Generals January and February (Winter) had served him better. Florence Nightengale had braved the danger and peril and two years later when she returned to England she established the first college of nursing in St. Thomas and King's College in London. — After her marvellous and charitable life she crossed the Jordan in 1910.

The fame of Edith Cavell originated in the 1914-1918 war. She directed a hospital in Brussels, Belgium and attended to the needs of the wounded Allied troops. She gave her life in the Allied cause. The German spies had kept vigilance day and night on Edith Cavell until she was finally held at the muzzle of the pistol, then she was accused for war crimes, court martially condemned to death; she faced her cruel fate in October 1915. These two heroines of England have left humanity this great Institution, universally known as Red Cross Society.

CULTURAL UNDERSTANDING DECLARED NECESSARY TO HEMISPHERE SOLIDARITY:

(Culled from America Unida)

Boston, Massachusetts.

—The ideal of Inter American solidarity will be able to weather a good many gales in the postwar world, despite efforts by forces hostile to the United Nations to suggest that the United States will relax its efforts after the war in behalf of the Good Neighbor program, William Berrien, professor of Spanish and Portuguese at Harvard University in Cambridge, Massachusetts, declared recently.

Writing on "The Importance of Inter American Cultural Relations" in the magazine, EDUCATION, published here, Mr. Berrien said friendly political relations must depend upon helpful economic collaboration and genuine cultural interchange.

Inter American solidarity will endure partly because of the ground work of broad regional cooperation which the Pan American Union has laid during the past 55 years, he declared.

Havoc which the war has brought to European countries has made the other Americas aware of their own problems, among them undernourishment illiteracy, inequitable land ownership, semi feudal working conditions, and low consuming power, the professor wrote.

"To these conditions have been added new wartime hardships in the form of inflation, shortages and lack of transportation. The speeches of delegates of the other American Republics at recent world conferences show that they are vitally concerned about economic guarantees and the sovereignty of smaller states".

Mr. Berrien said a permanent program for the development of Inter American commercial relations is well assured, but that people of the other Americas, impressed by our ability to wage total war without altering our democratic pattern, want to understand the moral and intellectual values which have led to our participation in the struggle.

They also want to know more of our cultural institutions and of our contribution to the creative arts he said. They expect us to be equally interested in the values for which they stand.

Mr. Berrien said the work of the Division of Cultural Relations of the State Department and the Office of Inter American Affairs had done much toward eradicating the impression in the other Americas that United States culture is predominantly materialistic and utilitarian.

There are valuable lessons to be learned from scholars of the other Americas, one of which is that scholarship has to do with the interpretation of facts, not with the mere accumulation and recording of these facts", he said.

The civilizations North and South of the Rio Grande are essentially different but each can supplement and enrich the other. What is needed is a program of cultural relations which is vital, disinterested and continuous".

HITLER'S DEAD BODY

Originating from a Paris news organ it is reported that the dead body of Hitler had been found by a high Russian officer on the 19th of December 1945. It was discovered buried in a hidden refuge at a very short distance from the Third German Reich.

The identification is said to have been effected by Hitler's dentist who examined the dental work of the buried body. Personally we do not believe that Adolfo Hitler is dead; recalling the statement which was released by a Nazi Naval Officer that as long as the German underwater crafts were in operation, the Navy had vowed to protect the Fuehrer. While the invasion of Berlin was in process the Nazi submarines were yet in activity.

We beg to call your attention to our remark at the back or receipt which reads:

This bill must be paid at our office before the 10th. of the month

Be so good as to comply with this request and do not oblige us to suspend our service, a step which we would much regret to take

IN EXPECTATION

We are in expectation of having the visits of three to four ships with cargoes proceeding directly from the United States and Europe. It is estimated that the vessels will discharge at this port approximately five thousand tons of merchandise and other needful articles.

Seasoning effect was added with the presence of the Band of Music.

Our highly regarded fellow citizen and President of the Educational Committee, Don Carlos Mora delivered the opening address and by which he maintained his mo- as a gallant knight on an

In response Lic. Don Fonseca gave illustrations of the ordeal in his toil, but with the assurance that there is no weariness. We paraphrase from his speech that such is his purpose; such is his zeal and with unfaltering effort for the betterment of Limon, economically, educationally, socially, morally and otherwise.

DISTURBANCE-EMPEROR HIROHITO'S NEW YEAR MESSAGE IN MILAN

It is reported that grave disturbances are taking an ascending character in Milan, one of the important cities of Italy. It necessitated the intervention of armed forces to suppress the uprising.

Behind the motive is given the information that disfranchisement in certain industries as well as in Public Works giving preferences to exsoldier led by inscrupulous political agitators.

AN IMPORTANT NOTICE

We are voluntarily using this means to advise all foreigners who are under the alien Residential Cedula requirements that the yearly Renovation is to be effected within the months of January and March. At the close of this first quarter any person who has not complied will be subject to a fine according to the disposition of the Law.

The New Year's Message of Emperor Hirohito to the Japanese public is classified to be democratizing the thoughts of the Japanese as well as for the liberation of his government.

The pronouncement of the Emperor is said to be without parallel in the annals of Japan's history and is given as follows:

"The Japanese traditional conception that the Emperor is a divine person was a false acceptance and the Japanese is not destined to govern the world".

This declaration is stated to have been very pleasing to General Douglas MacArthur, the North American High Command.

It has been mentioned also that about three hundred members of the Japanese Parliament will be dismissed from office. Among these are to be those influential in the association of help to the Imperial Government and to the Societies of Political Character to the State and to which the greatest number of the Parliamentarians belong. This is destined to blunt the operation of the so-called Progressive Party. The seats in the Parliament are said to number 466.

BULLETINS FROM BRITAIN

THE WAY TO THE STARS

REVIEWED BY SQUADRON LEADER WILLIAM SIMPSON OF BRITAIN'S ROYAL AIR FORCE

(Conclusion)

The atmosphere of those strange, exciting days, when the quiet countryside of England was gravely threatened by its first invasion after nearly a thousand years of liberty, is faithfully presented. One of the most dramatic shorts of all is that of a formation of Blenheims back from a raid flying over the sunlit, sleepy town. Children stop playing and watch the aircraft pass, blissfully unaware of the fact that only a few young air men stand between them and Hitler. The battle is won. Britain prepares herself as a base for the invasion of Europe.

which he considers, barbaric, and heartily enjoys himself in the process. Breezy Americans crowd out the bar of the Red Lion and shock the staid old residents by complaining loudly about the slow service in the dining room.

Among the Americans there is one, Johnny (Douglas Montgomery) who succeeds very quickly in adapting himself to the strange conditions. He has left his wife and two small children in the United States, is very homesick and glad to find sympathy with 'Miss Todd'. He plays with her baby, reads the verses of the dead father, and shows photographs of his own children.

When the tour of operations is over, Johnny turns down the offer of a safer job in America training younger men and is eventually killed because he refused to bale out of his aircraft when it was flying over the village with a high explosive bomb lodged in the bomb hatch. The crew escaped by parachute, but Johnny insisted in bringing the plane down on to the airfield and is killed by the explosion on landing.

HUSBAND'S LAST POEM

The climax and end of the film is the effect on 'Miss Todd' of the news of Johnny's death, while a background voice recites the moving lines of her husband's last poem.

It is now the epitaph of her; both young, airmen and fathers — one English and the other American.

"Fetch out no shroud For Johnny in the cloud; And keep your tears For him in after years. Better by far For Johnny the bright star, To keep your head, And see his children fed".

It is in the unstrained emotional effects of 'The Way to the Stars' that it has claims to greatness. And this is heightened by the verses of Johnny Pudney and the incidental music of Bradsky.

The Americans, at first rather scornful and hurt by the formal frigidity of the English, forgot their homesickness in the beer that the Englishmen taught them

WHY BRITAIN MUST EXPORT

Slumps in Britain have often started with slumps in its export trade. A decline in the foreign demand for Lancashire cotton goods, or for coal from South Wales or for steel from the Midlands led to a fall in activity and employment in the cotton, coal or steel industry, and thence to a fall in income and employment everywhere else. For as Lancashire cotton operatives, or South Wales miners, or Birmingham steel forgers lost their jobs and had less to spend, local retailers, publicans, builders, transport workers earned less and, in turn, spent less. So the vicious spiral of deflation spread from the export industries to the home industries and from one region to another. These effects were particularly serious as so much of Britain's economic activity has always centred on exports: more, in fact, than is the case in any other major country of the world.

Here, then, is a source of instability which is not in the power of any Government to control directly. Every Government can directly influence the level of domestic demand; but none can insure the level of demand for the foreign market.

In theory, this difficulty could be overcome by reducing international trade — exports and imports — to the point of self sufficiency. This would mean producing every thing at home instead of concentrating on a limited range of products and exports.

to enjoy at the R. Lion, and gave a splendid Christmas party to the local children. The English, puzzled at first by the free and easy ways of the Americans, learned to appreciate the genuine — heartedness of the Americans.

Underlying the main emotional theme of 'The Way to the Stars' there is the certainty that time, the exchange of views and most of all a common purpose and the shared experience of war, can finally break down barriers of language, customs and nationality.

changing some of these for other products provided by foreign countries. Grapes could be produced in hot houses, or could be extracted from coal, plastics could be substituted for aluminum, and so on. There would then be no major uncontrolled factors to upset a plan for full employment.

But the cost, in terms of living standards, would clearly be immense. Foreign trade has the great and solid advantage that it provides for a division of labour between different countries and allows one and all to enjoy a larger real income than would have been possible without it. The Gold Coast climate is suitable for the growing of cocoa; the labour of Britain is (and has for some time been) suitable for the manufacture of concrete mixing machinery; the chances are that in these circumstances both countries will be better off by exchanging cocoa for concrete mixers than they would be if each tried to produce both cocoa and concrete mixers.

There is no doubt that Britain's standard of living could never have risen to the extent it has if Britain had not fostered a large export trade. Nor is there any doubt that the same holds good for the future. It is true that a larger proportion of our foodstuffs can be efficiently grown at home than had been thought possible before the war. It is also true that the war time development of substitute products may allow us in future to go without some of the raw materials which we used to import before the war.

On the other hand, the loss of much of our overseas assets means that we shall have to export more in order to obtain the means of payment for any given volume of imports. Moreover, as against any cut in our imports due to expanded home production and raw materials, we have to set the fact that MORE foodstuffs and raw materials will be wanted to nourish our full employment economy. For high level of employment calls for a high level of imports. — When the wheels of industry turn at full speed large quantities of raw materials are used up. And when everybody has a job, incomes are some more foodstuffs. We high and people want to consume should therefore budget for a level of imports at least as high as it was before the war, and seeing that we shall no longer pay for any substantial part of those imports out of interest and dividend receipts from abroad for a level of exports above that of pre war years.

What are the difficulties we are liable to run into?

One is that if some manufacturers are assured of a large and expanding home market — as they would be in a system of full employment — they might be unwilling to engage on the production of goods destined for an uncertain foreign market. That was to some extent the experience of Germany after 1935.

The risk of this happening in this country is not very great: many manufacturers — and whole branches of industry — have sunk a great deal of specialised equipment and much effort and goodwill in an export business which should be capable of speedy revival. But it cannot be denied that there was a tendency before the war for manufacturers to change over gradually from catering for foreign markets to producing for the home market, and this tendency would doubtless be reinforced by post war full employment.

One way of overcoming this difficulty would be for the State to subsidise exports or to underwrite the credit risks of exporters. If, however, moderate help of this kind should not suffice, the State might itself enter the market as a wholesale buyer and place the goods abroad through export machinery of its own. This should not be unduly difficult since the Government has at its disposal even before the war a commercial intelligence service, however embryonic, in the shape of the Department of Overseas Trade with agents in every country. Moreover, the Government has accumulated a great deal of experience in selling in war time — for instance through the United Kingdom Commercial Corporation.

The main difficulty, however, is likely to arise as a result of inability to sell. Foreign countries may not be willing to buy from us as much as they would like to sell to us. This is unlikely to happen in foreign countries too, pursue a policy of full employment at home. In that case they, like us, will be keen to buy, and we could all fully realise the advantages of international exchange. If, on the other hand, foreign countries should permit their economic system to suffer from severe fluctuations in employment, their demand for our exports will also fluctuate and we shall periodically find it difficult to acquire the means of payment for our imports.

In fact, our own policy of full employment will go far to reduce the risk of this happening. For our great and increasing demand for imports will help maintain activity in the export industries of other countries. There are some countries, such as Australia, Denmark, Finland, and New Zealand, whose exports to Britain accounted for anything between 15 and 30 per cent of their national incomes.

Moreover, since a large proportion of their domestic production was in fact consumed by the people engaged in exporting goods to Britain, very much more than 15 to 30 per cent of employment in these countries was derived from British demand. Given a high and stable British demand, there would therefore very likely be a high and stable level of employment in these countries as a direct result of full employment in Britain.

It is true that our largest suppliers are not, at the same time, our most important customers; but they, in turn, are to large extent the customers of our customers; and by buying much from them we could hope that a good proportion of their purchases from third countries would come back to us in the end.

It, however, we feel that too much of this demand gets 'lost' on the way we could enter into direct long term buying and selling arrangements with those countries which would make our mutual purchases more or less balance over a long period. This might be held to involve a distortion of the natural channels of trade, forcing Australians, for instance, to buy British cars instead of American cars. But in the circumstances envisaged the alternative to such an arrangement would not be a similar volume of trade differently distributed but much less trade all round.

For if we cannot sell enough to obtain the foreign exchange with which to buy what we would have liked to buy, we shall simply have to cut down our purchases. In that case the result will be unemployment in Australia, spreading from their export to their domestic trades. They might be able, after a lot of frictional unemployment, to set their sheepfarmers to work on road building, but they would remain short of foreign exchange and be forced to cut down their own purchases from third countries.

Bilateral agreements of this sort have come to be discredited because, in the past, they were normally associated with the exploitation of agricultural suppliers. Germany, for instance, undertook to take the whole of the agricultural surplus of certain Balkan countries over a long period and at stable prices. At first sight, these countries seemed to benefit from such arrangements; but they found in the first place, that Germany was only willing to let them have such goods in exchange as she could easily spare — goods which were in most cases quite different from those wanted, and, in the second place, having geared their production to the export of the goods demanded, for instance, soy beans — they lost all chances of selling in other markets, and were forced to give Germany credits which were never repaid at all.

But exploitation of this kind is not inherent in bilateral arrangements. They are an instrument of planning they can be abused or they can be used for expansion and welfare. If Britain is set not on getting something for nothing, or on getting a great deal more than she gives, bilateralism can be used to stabilise international trade and employment at a high level.

Even so, it must be recognised that bilateralism is very much of a second best. It is a device that should be held in reserve and used only if the system of multilateralism breaks down for multilateral — a system in which everybody can spend the proceeds of their exports wherever they like — is clearly preferable if the full advantages of international division of labour are to be secured. Given full employment in all the leading countries, particularly Britain and the U. S. A., there can be no doubt that bilateralism would merely force world trade into uneconomic channels, and seriously impede progress.

LAWRENCE OF BURMA

When the British Army was staggering out of Burma in 1941, pursued by the victorious Japs, Major Hugh Paul Seagram buckled on a parachute and dropped behind the enemy lines.

He organised guerrillas of the Karenni tribe. They killed 10,000 Japs.

The major became a legendary warrior. The furious Japanese bridled and threatened the tribesmen to betray him.

But they never told. It was when the Japs in fury began to burn villages, kill women and children, that Major Hugh gave himself up. He did so to save the hill people from massacre.

He was taken to one of their most notorious concentration camps and beheaded.

He had spent 12 years among the Burmese. He would spend his leaves traveling across Burma in an old car, living with the tribes. He learned their language.

AMONG THE BAPTISTS

A rebirth of the congregations of yore was evidenced in the city Baptist Church on Sunday the sixth of the present month on the occasion of the annual Harvest Festival celebrations.

The gratifying scenes redounded to the Christian fellowship of the adherents and good friends of the Church.

The weather condition was ideal; a blessing which dame nature had so graciously bestowed apparently as her contribution to the sacred occasion.

The Harvest sermons by the Reverend Wm. Ford, the Pastor of the denomination at the eleven o'clock forenoon and evening services were mellowed with the fundamental principles of Harvest Thanksgiving. The spiritual food derivable therefrom was serviceable as manna to the hungry soul.

Increasing grandeur of the celebration was seen at the three o'clock afternoon Harvest Programme; — an entertainment given by the choir and the Young People associated with the Church. The presenting of the gifts in rather fashionable and well decorated baskets accompanied

WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES

The first anniversary of our good friends Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Owens appeared on the calendar of time on December the 24th. Recently passed; being the commemorative date on which they were united in holy wedlock life in the city Baptist Church and climaxed with a presentable reception at their city residence.

FOREIGN BRIEFS

Dealing with the prosecution of the Nazi war criminals it is said that some of Hitler's fundamental desires dominate the world are given as follows:

1. The fight against the working class: — To strip them of power by virtue to abolish all Labour Unions.
2. The fight against the churches: — To eliminate the influence of the church the Nazis effected a systematic campaign against all sections of Christianity.
3. The crimes against the Jews: — The Nazis having made fanatic judgment to annihilate the Jewish people.
4. The terrorism and preparation for the war: — Those in opposition to the Nazi regime suffered torture in the concentration camps and by this torture many families suffered the loss of some of their members who disappeared.

In the spirit of the highest congratulations and heartiest good wishes we mention the first marriage anniversary of our esteemed citizens, Mr. Trino Rojas and Mrs. Josefina Steele de Rojas whose brilliant marriage reception was observed in our city on January the 3rd, 1945. May they live and continue in peared as a consequence.

5. The experimental aggression. Before the preparation for the war the Nazis violated all the treaties and employed other means more suitable to the success of their objective.

6. The war of aggression: — The Nazi armies invaded Poland when the German High Command is understood to have been ready to open an energetic action.

7. The conspiracy with Japan: — The Nazis collaborated with Japan because they saw in them of similar mentality and purpose.

the tailless type of aircraft of the MANX type over the conventional aeroplane permits greater loads to be carried and with the absence of a tailplane and the consequent lowered air resistance much higher speeds can be attained. Such a type offers great possibilities for the installation of jet propulsive units within the wings.

MOTHER AND CHILD HACKED WITH MACHETE

From one of the districts of the province of Alajuela comes the report that a native woman bearing the name of Julia Monge has with a machete seriously wounded

Señora Morales de Romero and her four year old child. The terrible case is said to have originated from a quarrel between the two neighbours when Julia Monge is stated to have become enraged and cruelly hacked Mrs. Romero. Then, according to the information the child effected to cry in seeing the state of her mother when the Monge woman told the infant to "Shut up" and without further ado the child was made a victim. The cries of mother and daughter soon brought merciful persons who rushed wounded to the San Juan de Dios Hospital in the Capital. Making her escape by means of a carter, we learn that the attacker was apprehended and held in custody to answer for her dastardly act. What cruelty?

The very impressive ceremony of Installation was evidenced in the Hall of the New Hope Lodge of the Ancient Order of Shepherds, Ashton Unity on the night of Wednesday, December 12, 1945.

The special occasion brought together the members of the five Lodges associated with the British Independent Order of Good Samaritans and Daughters of Samaria. These are: The Light Or Limon, number seventeen — Britannia, number eighteen — King Solomon, number nineteen — Mount Purity, number forty nine and Rose of Paradise, number fifty one.

In the performance of the ceremony, Mr. Moore was ably supported by Mrs. Jane Poyser who possesses the rank of Past Supreme Council Associate and on the request of the Installing Master she performed the duties as Grand Escort and with the patient is in a drowsy state, known medically as a "suggestibility state". And then a psychiatrist talks to him, suggests that soon he will be able to see again, hear again, or have the use of his limbs.

An eminent psychiatrist, who has treated hundreds of soldiers by "hypno-analysis" says results have been excellent.

Quite an alarm was sounded last Saturday morning in the neighbourhood of Pitua, one of the villages of Limon when Geo. C. Smith was found dead in his room. Whether that he lives a lonely life and it was observed that doors of the house had remained closed for a longer period than customary; this lifted suspicion; then an approach was effected and the discovery was reported to the proper authorities.

We learn that the Agricultural Defence Committee, according to the study on the national consumption of sugar and the increase in production there is no need to

NEGRO GOVERNOR APPOINTED FOR THE VIRGIN ISLANDS

President Truman has recently appointed Judge William Henry Hastie, Negro Dean of Howard University for the high office of Governor of the Virgin Islands to succeed Governor Charles Harwood.

This is in line with the Constitutional requirement to secure the ratification of the Senate.

This appointment recalls to memory, Mr. Harry S. Truman's discourse on racial problems when as Senator in Chicago on July 14, 1940.

"We must not forget that all the people must give equitable treatment to the Negro. We must give equal justice; equal opportunities for various reasons; the most elemental of these are that he is human and a citizen of the United States by birth."

"We should not forget that if we sink the negro in his hope and do not provide the means for his welfare, as well as to live decent and other necessities of life, the law of compensation will enter in vigour and the whites will sink also with the negro."

"If the whites want to better their own condition, they should lend more attention to the facilities of education for the negro."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

January the 9th of each year is held dearly by our very dear friend Mrs. Hilda Lewis of the Jamaica Town Settlement; being that date on which she first saw the light of day, and true to her characteristic cordial and winsome character, the cheer and presence of her loved ones as well as well wishers are always assured to grace the family residence to pay tribute to her on the commemorative event.

Seemingly this year's anniversary celebration was navigated over much higher waves than many of the previous ones, this no doubt was due to the congenial atmosphere which enthused the city guests to attend and helped to make sunshine.

A rather enjoyable evening; — one embedded with the social past-time agreeable to Mrs. Lewis distinctive standard of living. Interesting discourses were given; these were punctuated with very rich beverages and toothsome delicacies.

Augmenting the fertilization for the social garden appropriate music was supplied by Messrs. Vincent Hall (Blue) Gerald Watson — Marcus Cuza and Stanfodr Dobson. The sense of hearing was gladdened, but the feet remained at stand still.

We, too, very appreciably shared the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis.

This "Weekly" wishes the honoree many more happy birthdays.

In addition to the pursuance of her studies we learn that Miss Dorothy is assigned to other duties to which she is qualified and with exemplified satisfaction.

ENGLISH WIVES FOR AMERICA

The presence of the North American troops in England during the preparatory days for the invasion of Hitler's Europe had seemingly paved the way for many marriages among the American soldiers and English women.

The termination of the war automatically re-establishes a great number of the American troops in their country while their wives remained in England.

We now learn that the first exodus of 720 wives will sail from England on the 20th of the present month to join their husbands in the United States of America. They are to be conveyed by the ship "Argentina" of the Ward Steamship Lines. — A larger group is slated to leave at a later date.
