THE NEGRO AT THE CHURCH

The Negroes as a class are generally the most reli-gious people in any country you meet them. They are never too poor to raise mo-ney to build a new church, and however the white people may feel about wag:s and race segregation, they are always ready to contribute to a Negro Church. I have attended their services on several occasions and noted their religious fervour often several occasions and noted their religious fervour often reaching hysteria. Like most revivals, no word of reason or fact or philosophy is heard. The occasion is a religious orgy. Expressions such as, «Praise the Lord». such as, «Prase the Lord», «Glory Hallelujah», and the like are shouted at the top of their voices. These words are seldom connected with any comprehensible sentence. If they have no meaning, they at least stir the auditors they at least stir the automore to an emotion not unlike any other revely. It is not idle curiosity that draws me to one of these orgies. For to one of these orgies. For many years I have he'd the opinion that the Negroes opinion that the Negroes a long suffering people, and in spite of my own views on religious questions I cannot duny a feeling of satisfaction that for a time they seem to forget their disabilities and troubles. I know that this alf, burotism is like any and troubles. I know that this self-hynotism is like any other narcotic, dangerous when taken in too large dcses. I know that, after the exaltation, depression must come and that the net result is trainings and brinds more is injurious and brings more is injurious and brings more pain than pleasure. I would be the last one to interfere with their religious orgies, and I am inclined to believe that for some of the revelers the few hours of forgetfulness are worth the price. But I am interested in price. But Iam interested in the Negro as a «race» or a «people», and cannot avoid the conclusion that their slow and painful struggle for greater opportunities would be made easier if they may less religious. The de-But Iam interested iñ were less religious. The de-velopment of any people is is greater in proportion to their dependence on reason, and an ability to face the facts, however hard the facts may be.

Assuming that there is a God, what reason has the Negro to praise him? Is God his friend? If so, why has he made Negroes the hewers of wood and drawers of water through all the long and dreary past? And why is it that even today men and women of courage and intellect are forced to de-gradation and humiliation because of the colour of their skin? God could change it Assuming that there is a because of the color the color then skin? God could change it all in the twinkling of an eye. In fact, it was only by his will that this suffering was aver forced upon the ever forced upon the was blackman.

I can understand the cause that made the Negro relig-icas. During his long ser-vitude in bondage he was taught religion. He was closely watched to prevent the growth of any organization that might by chance teach that might by chance teach him independence. There was only one place where he and his kind could meet, and this was the church. The master knew that he could learn no sedition there. Together with other ideas he was industriously taught the text: «Servants obey your master». The church needed no supervision. It was sup-ported by the whites. Its influence was safe and good. The coloured man learned to sing and pray. He was taug t his place and be learn-ed it well. Even after the Civil war of America, when his legal freedom was assured, the Negro had no place in the leading churches. There were white churches and coloured churches, and t ere were white churches and coloured churches, and t ere could be no communion even in the worship of God. The white peeple below the even in the worship of God. The white people helped the Negro build his churches, and even his Y. M. C. A's, but these were «Jim Crow» churches and «Jim Crow» Y. M, C. A's, although both worshipped the same God and read the same book. It is not possible that the whites would exclude them on earth but would associate with them in heaven. Those on earth but would associate with them in beaven. Those who believe in excluding them from white churches and white Y. M. C. A's will of course expect them to keep their place in Heaven and expect God to treat them no better there. Those Natures who do to the Heaven and expect God to treat them no better there. Those Negroes who go to Heaven will go to a «Jim .row» Heaven, and of course the whites will take the choice of places in the hereafter as they do now. If there is a God he must know and approve of all of this. It is perfectly plain that if there is a God, and He holds man and his d.stiny in the hollow of his hand, then this God is white. No one would ever conceive that this God was black What can the Negro expect of a white God who has already countenanced has already countenanced and approved of his place of servitude through the ages? Will he do any better or diferently in Heaven than he has upon the Earth? Of course it is only fair to say that one dreat church

Of course it is only fair to say that one great church, the Catholic, does not dis-criminate against the Negro. This church has earned the respect of the Negro relig-ionist toward Catholicism. Every observer of the Ne-gro knows that he spends too much of his meager in-come on the church. In our big cities they are trying to imitate the whites. Not our big cities they are trying to imitate the whites. Not only have some organizat-tions succeeded in building elaborate churches, but, I am informed, they i-ave «paid» choirs. While tens of thousands are standing in bread lines, the contribu-ions to extravagant churches go on. It is not easy for an outsider to see how any luxury or extravagance is needed for the worship of God. God.

The Negroes need almost The Negroes need almost everything that modern ci-vilization demands. They have but one medical school in all the Southern States. They are almost without hos-its in the southern in Cost pitals even to here in Cos-ta Rica, he must beg ad-missison, They have reached the point where they can not much longer rely upon the aid of the whites. They have already come to be competitors of the whites in industry, and even in the professions, literature and «on their own». Their future progress needs education, opportunity intelligence go and, aboee all, courage in and, above all, courage in himself. The Negro, like the rest, must look out for thi-world, Before he robs him-self to increase the extrava-gance of the church he should ask the simple ques-

ALL LIFE IS ONE LIFE

Dear Mr. Editor: In this age of world

greatest enlightenment, where human achieve-ment boasts to be the greatest in history where spiritual attainment from a christain stand point pretend to be at an alt itude never reached by past devotees, and where this civilization is impinepredecessors ing its with omnifarious sarc-asms, the human f mily is still indulging its ar-tions that make us forget that "All life is one Life" The barbarism carried on by denizens of past civilizations though contrary to Gods plan, were more plausible than to day, because they were only forming the nucleus upon which we the more advanced students of hu' man achievement were to construct the tormidable superstructures compatible with Progress realising all the time that "All Life is one Life". Su .h superstructures have been erected, but alas! the buildersimbibingthewine of ost ntation, egoism, a n d vaingloriousness, h a v e transformedthat which represent the glory of God in miniature to the crumbling magnificense of boastful man. We do not seem to realise that unless we recognise the oneness of Life, so that righteous n'ss from the basis or toundation stone may impregnate the whole of our culture, inevitable destruction is at hand. Though we wink at facts and harden our hearts the "Small Still Voice" condemns. Disadvantages and cruelties incurred on weaker peoples and lower Order of Creation are nothing in our consideration.TheFatherhood of God from a universal stand point as advocated by Master Jesus is like mere words passing through a whirlwind to be lost in oblivion. "Do unto others as you like them do unto you upon which hangs the perpetual Law of Peace, Love, and Prosperity is sneered at as the most abominable philosophic al odour inhaled by us. Our presumptiousness cause us to think that all other entities are inferior to us, forgetting that dignity in Life lies in the production of the entity and not in the refined or gross materialism, & that'every prospect pleases, but man alone is vile. Jesus substantiated this by stating that the humble lily growing in a pool of stagmant water was more beautiful than all the glories of our boasted Solomon, and that the very hairs of our heads are numbered. The socalled interior creat ures are in the same category in the Scheme of Things before the Crea-tor as the greatest man or woman. And right here I cannot help but reiterating a phrase from theimmortalShakespeare where he said on Adversity, Sermons in stones, books in running brooks, and Good or God in every thing. Unless we come to the realization that "All Life is one Life" readjust our affairs relative to righteousness on behalf of such the op-probrium of the cons-cience will still be heard above the din, and the Divine Fingers will ever write on the Walls of Reciprocity. Man, What so'er Thou sowe t, that Also shall ye reap.

Literature

At the last meeting of the Waldeck Literary an Athle-tic Club, Miss Edna Allen, the Librarian, gave a very interesting and inspiring ad-dress on Athletics. She said that the ancient Greeks were great Athletes, with them life consisted for the greater part of sport and games, in fact they looked upon them as port of their religion; espethey looked upon them as print of their religion; espe-cially the foot race with which was associated betting and staking of a deposit on the one thought likely to be the winner. So important to them were these games that time was measured not by the movements of the Sun, but by the recurrence of games, and distance measured not by miles but by the length of the foot-race. The games with their accompanying bet-ting were a part of their religion, for from early morn-ing worshippers might be seen thronging the Temple and white-robed priests chanting their litanies, and filling the air with the smoke of their sacrifices

How Significant London, Nov. 4.– The end of the British Empire vvas foreseen by Dean Inge of St. Paul's Cathedral in a lecture on the tate of empires at Uni-versity College of North Wales in Bangor. After discussing the fall of the Roman and Spanish em pires, Dean Inge said he believed the period of the expansion of the British Empire has come to an end.

«The profigate expen-ditures of the World War, tollowed by a kind of government I will not criticise, has reduced the richest nation of the world to the verge of bankruptcy and deep humiliation. Although I don't wish to take a pessimistic view altogether, I am afraid our part as a world power is approaching its end. We have been good enough, with some luck, to achieve a wonderful position in the world, but I am afraid we are not good enough to keep it» he did not know hovy the population could be reduced but that it must be done.

We will continue to be a great nation if we keep true to our ideals and, whether the nations speaking our language and living largely under our traditions remain under our flag or not, I think they will regard England, as we ourselves regard con-tries like Palestine and Greece, as their spiritual home.

«Therefore I do not view the end in a de pressing frame of mind. L think our empire, in the old sense, is coming to an end but our race is not, and what is worth keeping is in our own hands, especially in the hands of the younger generation to make or
